POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

Many a national and international story will The Colonel said: break into the headlines in early December. Beginning Dec. 7, some of the nation's -- perhaps the free world's -- most influential men will meet in Bal Harbour, Fla.

They will gather for a convention held but once every two years. From Dec. 7 to Dec. 13, the leaders of most of America's embattled labor movement, the men who as chiefs of the AFL-CIO speak in the name of 14.5 million unionists, will make dramatic decisions.

Sometime during their Seventh National Constitutional Convention they expect to play host to President Johnson. Then, or shortly after he speaks, the 1,000 delegates will decide how much money and manpower to throw into the 1968 Presidential campaign; what their strategy will be; and how their coast-to-coast Committee On Political Education will operate in some 1,500 cities.

They will make vital decisions on national and international questions including, of course, the Vietnamese war. They will develop their plans for new organization drives deep in the "inner cities," on the farms, and in the South.

In the background will be leaders of the United Auto Workers whose president, Walter Reuther, is expected to take time out from his General Motors negotiations for what he has called a showdown with the other labor leaders. On the sidelines will be Teamsters officials seeking new alliances now that their general president Jim Hoffa is in the federal penitentiary.

In addition to the showdown seekers, there will be men who have made the headlines over the past two years -- president George Meany, machinist's chief Roy Siemiller, seafarers' Paul Hall, and steel's I. W. Abel.

In addition to the political decisions there will be talk of new strike strategems for 1968 -especially discussions of computerized coordinated bargaining such as has shut down the copper and other nonferrous mines since July 15.

There will be open debate on urban policy and the role of the new Negro movement inside labor. Our columnist Victor Riesel will be there to cover these headline stories -- in depth and with his usual and now ever more frequent behind-the-scenes exclusives.

Raymond Wright is the first to contend that not all wives are suspicious -- some know.

It will consist of color advertisements in advertising

Each month an ad appears, a new brochure will be produced containing backup data on the point stressed in that month's ad, according to Mr. McIntyre.

The campaign is aimed at advertisers and advertising agency professionals. MAIL-EARLY CAMPAIGN

Eternally hopeful, the Post Office Department again this year is asking Christmas givers to mail early. In anticipation of the greatest crush of holiday mail ever, the department has told local postmasters to begin hiring extra help by Saturday, Nov. 18, some 12 days ahead of the usual Dec. 1 target date. The early hiring coincides with the early-mailing campaign.

The postal system, sometimes creaking under the burden of regular mail, is bracing for nine billion pieces of holiday mail, some 800 million more than last season's record amount. The department feels that its early-warning efforts of the last few years have helped to avoid a late December onslaught such as in 1962 when the help 300,000 temporary employees was required. Postal officials envision the need this year of only half that number to aid their 610,000 regular clerks and carriers.

Postal officials attribute some of the improvement to the ZIP Code, which Americans have been coaxed into using routinely during its three years of operation. The ZIP (for Zone Improvement Plan) Code's nation-wide system of numbered postal zones permits mail sorting by an optical scanning device that can do the work of 15 clerks. Yet even these devices become overburdened if the holiday mail comes all at once.

The public is being urged to mail early in the day (as well as early in the season) to break the holiday pattern of light mailings in the morning and heavy mailings in the evening. Packages destined for distant places should be mailed by Dec. 4 and out-of-town greeting cards by Dec. 10. On local deliveries, parcels should be mailed by Dec. 13 and greeting cards by Dec. 15.

Out of Season. In Sheridan, Wyo, residents who turned up at the municipal swimming pool the hottest day of the year (100 degrees at midday) were greeted by a notice reading "Closed for the Winter."

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

Many a national and international story will The Colonel said: break into the headlines in early December. Beginning Dec. 7, some of the nation's -- perhaps the free world's -- most influential men will meet in Bal Harbour, Fla.

They will gather for a convention held but once every two years. From Dec. 7 to Dec. 13, the leaders of most of America's embattled labor movement, the men who as chiefs of the AFL-CIO speak in the name of 14.5 million unionists, will make dramatic decisions.

Sometime during their Seventh National Constitutional Convention they expect to play host to President Johnson. Then, or shortly after he speaks, the 1,000 delegates will decide how much money and manpower to throw into the 1968 Presidential campaign; what their strategy will be; and how their coast-to-coast Committee On Political Education will operate in some 1,500 cities.

They will make vital decisions on national and international questions including, of course, the Vietnamese war. They will develop their plans for new organization drives deep in the "inner cities," on the farms, and in the South.

In the background will be leaders of the United Auto Workers whose president, Walter Reuther, is expected to take time out from his General Motors negotiations for what he has called a showdown with the other labor leaders. On the sidelines will be Teamsters officials seeking new alliances now that their general president Jim Hoffa is in the federal penitentiary.

In addition to the showdown seekers, there will be men who have made the headlines over the past two years -- president George Meany, machinist's chief Roy Siemiller, seafarers' Paul Hall, and steel's I. W. Abel.

In addition to the political decisions there will be talk of new strike strategems for 1968 -especially discussions of computerized coordinated bargaining such as has shut down the copper and other nonferrous mines since July 15.

There will be open debate on urban policy and the role of the new Negro movement inside labor. Our columnist Victor Riesel will be there to cover these headline stories -- in depth and with his usual and now ever more frequent behind-the-scenes exclusives.

Raymond Wright is the first to contend that not all wives are suspicious -- some know.

CROWN ZELLERBACH BOOSTS

NEWSPAPERS AS AD MEDIUM SAN FRANCISCO -- Crown Zellerbach Corporation, one of the nation's major suppliers of newsprint, today began a massive campaign to inform advertisers of the unique characteristics of newspapers as an advertising medium. Built around a word coined and copyrighted by the company's newsprint division -- "Newspaperability" -- the campaign will run for 14 months in its initial stage, according to Vernon E. m. 60611 McIntyre, Crown Zellerbach's vice president for newsprint and printing paper sales. It will consist of color advertisements in advertising trade publications and brochures containing documented information on the unique abilities of newspapers to sell through advertising. The brochures will be sent to newspaper publishers in the 13 Western states, where Crown Zellerbach sells its newsprint, for use by the newspaper's advertising salesmen and representative firms. Each month an ad appears, a new brochure will be produced containing backup data on the point stressed in that month's ad, according to Mr. McIntyre.

The campaign is aimed at advertisers and advertising agency professionals. "Many of these people have grown up in their careers during the same time that television has made such a dramatic impact in our society," Mr. McIntyre said. "We have talked with many advertising professionals who frankly admit that they have never personally experienced the influence that newspapers have as an advertising medium. We want yet toto tell them of the continuing and increasing vitality of newspapers, and we have gathered considerable research to back it up."

The unique characteristics of newspapers as an advertising medium that will be covered in the campaign include such things as their ability to reach specific audiences, to pinpoint specific geographic locations, and to test advertising campaigns, Mr. McIntyre said. He pointed out that newspapers carried about $5 billion worth of advertising last year, an increase of some $420 million over the previous year.

Crown Zellerbach is one of the largest pulp and paper manufacturers in the world. It began tastes better after its calories manufacturing newsprint in 1883, when a paper have been removed. machine at its mill in West Linn, Oregon, produced the first newsprint in the West. now produce more than 600,000 tons of newsprint a year from 11 paper machines at five mills in the Pacific Northwest and British Columbia.

In addition to the "Newspaperability" campaign, Crown Zellerbach recently ran advertisements in The Wall Street Journal and FORTUNE magazine $18 in support of the newspaper business.

MAIL-EARLY CAMPAIGN

Eternally hopeful, the Post Office Department again this year is asking Christmas givers to mail early. In anticipation of the greatest crush of holiday mail ever, the department has told local postmasters to begin hiring extra help by Saturday, Nov. 18, some 12 days ahead of the usual Dec. 1 target date. The early hiring coincides with the early-mailing campaign.

The postal system, sometimes creaking under the burden of regular mail, is bracing for nine billion pieces of holiday mail, some 800 million more than last season's record amount. The department feels that its early-warning efforts of the last few years have helped to avoid a late December onslaught such as in 1962 when the help of 300,000 temporary employees was required. Postal officials envision the need this year of only half that number to aid their 610,000 regular clerks and carriers.

Postal officials attribute some of the improvement to the ZIP Code, which Americans have been coaxed into using routinely during its three years of operation. The ZIP (for Zone Improvement Plan) Code's nation-wide system of numbered postal zones permits mail sorting by an optical scanning device that can do the work of 15 clerks. Yet even these devices become overburdened if the holiday mail comes all at once.

The public is being urged to mail early in the day (as well as early in the season) to break the holiday pattern of light mailings in the morning and heavy mailings in the evening. Packages destined for distant places should be mailed by Dec. 4 and out-of-town greeting cards by Dec. 10. On local deliveries, parcels should be mailed by Dec. 13 and greeting cards by Dec. 15.

Out of Season. In Sheridan, Wyo, residents who turned up at the municipal swimming pool on the hottest day of the year (100 degrees at midday) were greeted by a notice reading "Closed for the Winter."

QUESTION OF THE WEEK

If we send foreign aid to countries, they hate us. If we don't they hat us. So why don't we take the cheap route to being despised?

The Daily Standard, Sikeston, Mo. Thursday, November 16, 1967

Now that another deer season is here, many hunters are anxious to bag that trophy animal. A place above the mantle or in the den probably has been reserved for a long time to hang such a trophy once it is mounted.

When the animal is killed, immediate action and care are essential. Don't for any reason slash the animal's throat. With modern ammunition, it shouldn't be necessary to do this, but if it is felt that bleeding is necessary, thrust a knife blade into the heart region back of the front legs. Enlarge the opening and the carcass should drain properly.

In moving the animal, be sure to protect the head, neck and shoulders. Avoid dragging the carcass. If necessary, skin out the shoulders and neck according to these instructions and transport the trophy separately:

The initial cut should be a complete circle made around the body just behind the front legs. This will leave plenty of skin in case a shoulder mount is decided upon instead of a neck mount. Next make a cut from the top of the circle between Carefully skin forward and down from the shoulders. Skin along the neck to the base of the skull and cut the head off at this point. Do not attempt to skin the head. Instead freeze it along with the attached neck and shoulder skin. Never fold the skin. Instead, always roll it up.

The taxidermist should get the head as soon as possible.

Any lucky deer hunter. . . The four-legged kind. . . who would like to have his picture taken with his prize is asked to stop by The Daily Standard office any day during the two seasons between 7 a.m. and 3 p.m.

No charge will be made. . . But if you'd like . . . you can pass out some deer steaks. Good luck.

Hunter success during opening weekend of Nebraska's 79. day pheasant season ranged from "best in years" in the Panhandle to only fair in the northeast and moderate elsewhere. Prospects for the 1967 season were very bright a couple weeks before the opening, and game commission technicians say the moderate success in most parts of the state does not reflect a shortage of birds. Except in the northeast, where adverse spring weather put a real damper on the bird populations, unharvested crops were the real

Only the Panhandle came out sparkling during the early days of the season, with more than half the hunters stopping at check stations reporting limits. And, it only took an average of a half-hour per bird. One hunting party of 25 gunners in the northern Panhandle all took their limits, a total of 100 birds.

Shooters in the northeast were not so fortunate. An average of about one bird per day was tallied in the first days, and these were hard to come by. The Southwest was better, but heavy cover made hunting tough for the opener. Conditions should improve steadily as harvesting progresses, for heavy ringneck populations are available. The western half of the state, however, takes the honors for pheasants this year. Southeastern hunters normally score only moderate success, and while the Sand Hills are not prime pheasant country, there are some hot spots this year, mostly to the south.

Only 25 per cent of the corn and 50 per cent of the milo had been harvested by Nov. 7 well behind last year. This accounts for much of the difficulty in the field. Quail season opening Nov. 10 put a new light on hunting success. Bobwhites are at record levels for top shooting in all parts of their range. Both seasons run through Jan. 21, 1968, with hen pheasants also legal during the last 21 days in certain areas. Quail limits are 6 daily and 18 in possession, and for ringnecks, four daily and 16 in possession.

By The Associated Press Today is Thursday, Nov. 16, the 320th day of 1967. There are 45 days left in the year. Today's highlight in history:

Canal was opened. On this date: In 1776, the British captured Ft. Washington in what now is New York's Upper Manhattan. In 1864, Henry Clay Workman wrote the song, "Marching Through Georgia," to comme morate Gen. William T. Sherman's march to the sea.

In 1907, Oklahoma became the 46th state.

In 1908, Arturoto Toscanini made his U. S. debut -- con-ducting "Aida" at New York's Metropolitan Opera House. In 1933, the United States and the Soviet Union established diplomatic relations. In 1944, during World War II, six Allied armies began a big offensive drive in France, Germany and the Netherlands. Ten years ago: The Demo-cratic Advisory C o u n c i l asserted that the United States, under President Dwight D. Eisenhower, had fallen behind in developing the weapons of tomorrow. Five years ago: The United States said it would continue surveillance flights over Cuba until the Castro government agreed to better means of guarding against an offensive military buildup.

One year ago: It was announced that President Johnson was in good condition after throat and abdomen operations.
